Conference Theme

"Mtoto ni Malezi: Msingi wa Familia Bora Kwa Taifa Imara."

1.0 Background and Context.

Early Childhood Development (ECD) is central to national development, directly influencing health, education, and socio-economic outcomes. Tanzania has made significant strides in ECD through the National Multisectoral Early Childhood Development Program (NM-ECDP) 2021/2022-2025/2026, ensuring an integrated approach to delivering services that support children's development. However, gaps remain in financing, policy coordination, parental education, and access to quality childcare, requiring a more collaborative and innovative approach to address them.

To strengthen these efforts, the Tanzania Malezi Summit (TMS) 2025 will be merged with the commemoration of International Family Day (May 15, 2025). Additionally, the event will serve as a national parenting dialogue, highlighting the importance of parenting practices and the National Parenting Agenda: "Familia Bora, Taifa Imara". Merging these events creates a powerful platform to:

- Emphasize parenting as a key national priority.
- Align ECD efforts with International Family Day's focus on family strengthening.
- Facilitate national dialogue on childcare, parenting, and nurturing care.
- Encourage policy commitments and investments in ECD and parental support programs.

1.1 Rationale for Merging TMS 2025 with International Family Day

The Role of International Family Day

International Family Day, observed globally on May 15, underscores the role of families in social development. The day provides an opportunity to highlight issues affecting families, including parenting, childcare, and child well-being. By integrating Tanzania Malezi Summit (TMS) 2025 with International Family Day, the event aligns global advocacy with national initiatives to:

- Promote evidence-based parenting practices.
- Strengthen family support systems for childcare.
- Create multi-sectoral commitments for investing in families and children.

Alignment with the "Familia Bora, Taifa Imara" Agenda

The "Familia Bora, Taifa Imara" initiative aims to:

- Improve parenting knowledge and skills.
- Promote inclusive childcare policies.
- Address harmful socio-cultural norms affecting children's development.
- Enhance nurturing care frameworks by supporting parental engagement.

TMS 2025 will serve as a launchpad for the National Parenting Guideline, aligning family and child well-being efforts with national and regional policy frameworks.

4 Conference Format:

To ensure a diverse, insightful, and impactful discussion, TMS 2025 will incorporate side sessions and paper presentations under the following sub-themes, aligned with the summit’s theme “Mtoto ni Malezi: The Foundation for Strong Families & a Resilient Nation”. These sub-themes will provide a structured platform for researchers, policymakers, practitioners, and community representatives to share knowledge, best practices, and innovative solutions in Early Childhood Development (ECD) and Parenting.

4.1 Side Sessions & Paper Presentations for Stakeholders

The conference sessions will be organised as follows:

- Plenary sessions where keynote presentations will be made along with panel sessions that spotlight country experiences.
- Oral paper presentations in thematic break-out parallel sessions
- Round table discussions for smaller groups that allow for in-depth engagement.
- Learning sessions and side events to support capacity building and joint planning for various interest groups. This will enable groups to engage, network and build pathways for collaboration and partnerships that would take Early Childhood forward in the region.
- Exhibition of partner initiatives and sharing of materials and resources.

4.2 Structure and Key Events of TMS 2025

1. Pre-Summit Regional Dialogues (April - May 20th, 2025)

- a) Hosted by the Government Regional Secretariat for implementation of ECD and Parenting Initiatives, regional coordinating units under TECDEN and other ECD and parenting stakeholders including religious institutions, learning / education institutions and private sector.
- b) Identifying enablers and barriers to ECD and parenting interventions and provision of childcare among stakeholders and practices among parents and caregivers.
- c) Develop region-specific resolutions / priorities for 2025/26 addressing barriers to ECD, childcare and parenting that will be consolidated into national resolutions / priorities at TMS 2025.

2. Media Tour and Community Outreach (April - May 20th 2025)

- i. Nationwide campaign through traditional media, social / online media and community outreach to educate communities on the importance of childcare, parenting, and duty bearers' roles.
- ii. Community outreach through open meetings and strategic meetings with influential and / or community leaders on parenting, childcare and ECD.

5.0 Immediate Outcome

1. Increased Public Awareness and Engagement in Parenting Best Practices. Nationwide media campaigns and community outreach immediately raise awareness and promote evidence-based parenting.
2. Launch and Adoption of Key Parenting and Childcare Initiatives. The National Parenting Guideline and National Childcare Campaign are officially launched and disseminated for immediate implementation.
3. Commitments and Policy Resolutions for Strengthening ECD. Government and stakeholders pledge policy and financial commitments to enhance parenting and childcare programs.
4. Enhanced Monitoring and Accountability for ECD Programs. The ECD Scorecard and Dashboard are launched to track progress and ensure accountability in parenting and childcare initiatives

6. Conference Host

The Ministry of Community Development, Gender, Women and Special Groups, in collaboration with Tanzania Early Childhood Development Network (TECDEN), UN Agencies and other International and National Stakeholders host the conference.

Conclusion

The Tanzania Malezi Summit (TMS) 2025 is an opportunity to prioritize parenting, strengthen family support systems, and drive national commitments toward childcare and ECD investment. By integrating with International Family Day, this summit will catalyse transformative policy and programmatic actions that benefit children, families, and communities nationwide.
